ALABAMA POLITICS. The Infamous Election Law-The Candidates Before the People. surbon press of Alabama is taunting the Republicans of that State with having made their party a tail to a very small kite, to wit, that of the "Greenback-Labor party," This because the Republicans falled to place a State ticket in the field, but received to support the candidates of the Greentack party. The Bourbons are also very demonstrative in showing the "inconsistency" and "absordity" of an all ance between a hardmoney and a greenback party. But any one who comprehends the condition of affairs in Alabama must clearly see that there is and can in the nature of things be but one issue between the Bour-bous and the other cit zens of Alabama, whatever may be their political views. The issue is whether or not the lawfully qualified voter is to be per-mitted to vote at elections, and whether or not his vote is to be honestly counted and returned.

his vote is to be honestly counted and returned.

UNTIL THIS ISSUE IS SETTLED

In favor of an honest ballet, nothing else can be made an issue in politics. Why should men say port or advocate any measure for the public good when they know that they would be powerless in any practical effort to alter or amend the law, simply because neither their votes me the votes of those who agree with them would be counted, but are stolen from them. Montgomery, the capital county of Alabama, has a Republican majority of at least five thousand. The Republican have nominated their members of the legislature from that county, and yet, though the solid Republican vote will be cast for these candidates, though they will actually receive more than five thousand votes in excess of THEM DEMOCRATIC COMPETITORS, there is no more probability of their being declared the test of these ways a large Re-

INFANOUS ELECTION LAW OF ALABAMAnot, we regret to say, because of its infamy, but for the reason that it gives to the Bourbons in the black counties a political power they would not have if the Republican votes were not counted as Democratic. The action of the Republican State convention in committing the Republican party to the support of the Greenback ticket has mot the hearry approval of Republicans and antiBourbons inromanout the State. These united will cast at least 20,000 votes in excess of the Burbons, and if the latter are not defeated, it will be because of the outrageous statem of Bourbon fraud, which has been rully exposed by the testimony taken in the contened election cases from Alabama during the present Congress.
